TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Two Men Precipitated from a Scaffold Forty Feet High.

Monday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock a sad accident occurred at Kern's new building, Market Square, which resulted in the almost instant death of one man and the seriously injuring of another. The firm of Hawkins, Butt & Co. having the contract for the galvanized iron cornice work of that building, were making preparations to commence the work. The two young men referred to—Enos Warters and Mike Burchell—Mr. Hawkins and two other men were to commence the work. In the morning, just before dinner, had been fastened and thoroughly tried in the usual way, and being considered perfectly safe was hoisted to the proper place. After dinner the two young men returned to their work and were sitting on the scaffold awaiting the arrival of Mr. Hawkins to give them some directions. Mr. Hawkins and the other men arrived, and before stepping down on the scaffold themselves, as they intended to do, were handing down some of the cornice to be used, which was being received by young Warters, and as he reached out his hands for the material one of the iron rods supporting the scaffold gave way and a distance of about forty feet, falling on his head and crushing in his skull. Dr. Morgan living right opposite the scene was almost instantly on the ground and all that could possibly be done was done, but he breathed his last in about twenty minutes after the fatal fall. All the members of the firm in the city, Messrs. Hawkins, Coffman, Cruze, and White were present and seemed deeply affected. They did all in their power for his recovery and failing in that accompanied the remains over to his residence in East Knoxville.

THE SCAFFOLD.

MR. WARTERS WAS HURLED HEAD-
LONG TO THE GROUND,

Mr. Warters was a son of Mr. T. L. Warters, and was a young man of steady habits. He professed religion some time since and joined the Shiloh Church, but whether he continued in the faith up to his death we are not informed. We will, however, hope so.

MIKE BURCHELL.

The other young man on the scaffold, made a very narrow escape. Being near the pulley rope, he managed to get hold of it, but just how, he himself, can not say, and thus came down, but with such rapidity that the rope took all the flesh from his hands, laying the bones bare. He suffered terribly, and when he first reached the ground was almost beside himself. His wounds were dressed, but last night he was still suffering very much.

THE CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT.

can not be explained, nor can any reason be given why the iron should give way. We examined the broken rod, and there is apparently no flaw in the iron, and the same scaffold was used in putting on the cornice on the firm's new building, and at one time ten or seven men were on it besides some bricks and mortar.

GRAND DIVISION SONS OF TEMPERANCE.

Proceedings of the Session, Yesterday.

This body met Saturday afternoon, G. H. Bomar, P. G. W. A., in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, after which the following officers were installed:

L. C. Shepard, G. W. P.
J. C. Brown, G. W. A.
A. M. McBeth, G. S.

J. W. C. Willoughby, G. Con.
S. M. Simpson, G. Sentinel.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the sale of Temperance Hall property, the proceeds to be invested in other property more suitable for the purpose.

The Grand Worthy Patriarch appointed G. H. Bomar, A. McBeth and S. F. Shepard trustees for the ensuing year.

The following gentlemen were appointed Deputies for the Divisions named:

S. N. Simpson, Union; J. C. Willoughby, Kingsport; Jonas Irish, Third Creek; W. H. Fain, Ready Creek; W. H. Gilbert, Holston; W. Y. C. Hannum, Maryville; A. M. Gamble, Pleasant Hill.

On motion 1,000 copies of the constitution for Grand and Subordinate Divisions were ordered printed.

The Grand Division then adjourned to meet at the same place on the fourth Thursday in January, 1876, in quarterly session.

The Temperance Cause.

Rev. J. F. Goldman, Grand Lecturer for the State, delivered a temperance lecture on Tuesday night last at Beaver Ridge Church, where a protracted meeting was being carried on by Rev. Jno. N. Moore, preacher in charge of the circuit. After the lecture an invitation was extended to all those wishing to enlist in the good work to do so, and Rev. Mr. Moore heading the list, others followed, until there were thirty-one persons initiated into the Order.

There had been an organization effected at this place a few months previous, with about twenty members, but they have not been doing much of late. These were revived in addition to the new members taken in, placing the Lodge in a flourishing condition. This is a good work, and we are glad to learn that Bro. Goldman is effecting so much good through the country in the temperance cause.

In Memoriam.

After a most painful and protracted illness, Mrs. J. L. Lloyd departed this life at 15 minutes of 6 o'clock, P. M., on the 4th of November, 1875. She was the daughter of Eltheldred and E. S. Henderson, and sister of Col. Wm. A. Henderson, so favorably known in East Tennessee.

She was born in Knoxville on the 13th of May, 1834. Was converted and joined the M. E. Church when quite a girl. She lost her father when a little child. Her widowed mother, her then little brother, with herself, constituted a trio, which has clung together through long years of those trials "which flesh is heir to," without faltering. Now the bond is broken, "one is taken, the others left." She had a superior intellect, and the advantage of a good education. She studied under Rev. Dr. Park, and also under Rev. Dr. Sullins.

On the 19th of July, 1857, Mary A. Henderson and Rev. J. L. Lloyd were married in Knoxville. In about one year from that time they moved to Alabama, where she felt it her duty to unite with her husband in the fellowship of the Good Hope Baptist Church, in Butler county, and was baptized by Elder David Lee, the Moderator of the Alabama Baptist Association. Since that time she has labored as a pastor's wife, in Athens, Ala., in Meridian, Miss., in Winchester, Tenn., and in the favored city of her nativity. But her work is done. Yes, done to the glory of God, the satisfaction of her pastor, and a precious memorial for her motherless children, husband, mother and brother, whose loss is irreparable while he gains is eternal.

When she was assured in her mind that her end was at hand she called each member of her family and gave them parting advice, then made them promise to meet her in Heaven. The beggars, the pine-carriers, the wails, the wretched and abandoned poor, will stand with her pastor, her Bible-class, her church, and her family, as witnesses in the Day of Judgment, that as a worker for the good of her race and the glory of her Master, "She hath done what she could." Peace to her ashes and salvation to her children, through Christ Jesus our Lord.

Sevier County Sabbath School Convention.

SEVIERVILLE, NOV. 7, 1875.

To the Editors of the Chronicle:

The Sabbath School Convention, met in Sevierville on Friday the 25th ultimo, and held an interesting session of two days.

W. C. Murphy was elected President; Rev. K. Whittle and Rev. P. M. Atchley, Vice-Presidents; W. L. Duggan, Secretary, and S. M. Frame, Statistical Secretary; G. W. Pickle, W. D. Ainsley, and M. Tarwater, were appointed a Committee on Resolutions; and D. H. Emert, Albert Keeler, and S. M. Frame on Statistics.

About 40 delegates were in attendance, representing 21 Sunday Schools.

F. Stafford, G. W. Pickle, and others gave interesting accounts of what has been done since the last Convention, to improve the condition of Sabbath Schools.

The "verbal reports of Superintendents" showed that much good has been accomplished in the Sunday School work.

The following questions were ably discussed, from which the Convention derived much valuable information:

"What is the best method to get all the classes interested in the Sunday School work?"

"How can we work most effectively to secure the conversion of scholars?"

"How can we extend the Sunday School work to destitute districts?"

At night Rev. P. M. Atchley addressed the convention on the subject "How should a Sabbath school be conducted?" His speech was founded on actual experience, and was delivered in such a logical style as to convince the audience of the correctness and importance of his plan of conducting a Sunday school to an advantage.

In the second day of the convention, several important subjects were discussed, the most prominent of which were: the use of the "International Series of Lesson Papers," and "Ought the Temperance cause to be made a part of the Sunday school work?"

The questions were thoroughly discussed, and many interesting features of the Sunday school work were presented.

The report of the Statistical Secretary showed that, in the Schools represented in this convention (six or seven having failed to send delegates), there are 255 officers and teachers, 1,873 scholars enrolled, with an average attendance of 1,075, making an increase since the convention in last May, of about sixty per cent. in the number of scholars, and about fifty per cent. in the number of schools. This is encouraging, and it is hoped that a flourishing Sunday school may be reported to the next convention, from every community in the county.

A committee of seven was appointed to organize schools in destitute districts.

The following are a part of the Resolutions which were reported by the committee, and adopted by the Convention:

Resolved, That the Sunday School is, of all human instrumentalities, the best adapted to the promulgation of moral and religious truth among all classes of mankind; that it is the most effectual agency for reclaiming those who are in the paths of wickedness, and that it presents the most inviting of all fields for Christian effort, and the cultivation and development of the Christian virtues.

Resolved, That the Sunday School cause has a strong claim for support upon all men who desire that truth and virtue may prevail, and that vice and error may disappear, but more especially upon the Church, to which the Sabbath School has long been a faithful handmaid, nursing in their tender years those who have proved the brightest lights and strongest supports of the Church.

Resolved, That in the true spirit of Christian fraternity, we cordially invite all professors of Christianity, without regard to denominational distinctions, to unite with us in the support and maintenance of Sabbath Schools within our borders.

Resolved, That sacred music should be a prominent feature in the exercises of every Sabbath School, and that we recommend its practice and cultivation in a much larger measure than at present generally prevails.

Resolved, That the religious instruction of children who can not read the Scriptures, should be carefully provided for; and this convention disapproves of the course frequently pursued of instructing such alone in the rudiments of temporal knowledge, leaving them ignorant of the great truths of Revelation.

Resolved, That the practice which so largely prevails among our Sabbath Schools of discontinuing during several months of the year is a great evil, and believing that there are in every community at least ten persons who will attend during the entire year, we pledge ourselves henceforward to discontinue no school to which we may belong when that number can be procured to attend.

Resolved, That while the Sacred Scriptures must furnish all our lessons in the Sabbath School, we recommend the use of other good books, and Sunday School papers, and especially the uniform series of Lesson Papers, as great helps in arriving at a correct knowledge of the truths of Scripture.

Resolved, That temperance is taught by the Bible, and ought to be taught in all Sunday Schools. That the use of intoxicating drinks as a beverage, in any degree, is a practice fraught with danger to the user, and very pernicious in its influence upon others.

It is, therefore, the sense of this Convention that all Sunday School teachers and officers should carefully abstain from the use of such drinks, and not only by precept but by a living example inculcate the virtue of temperance.

The Convention also passed a resolution tendering the thanks of the Convention to the Sevierville Sunday School for their hospitality in entertaining the delegates.

The convention adjourned Saturday evening to meet again in Sevierville, subject to a call of the Executive Committee.

Yours,
W. L. DUGGAN.

TWO HEAVY SUITS.

Against Life Insurance Companies.

We learned Saturday from Thomas Williams that he had instituted suit against two insurance companies who had refused to pay the policies held by Mr. Cornelius Coffin. He held a policy in the Nashville Life Insurance Company, and as that company has not an agent at this place at present, Mr. Williams instituted suit in the Circuit Court, at Chattanooga.

Mr. Coffin also held a policy in the Republic of Chicago, and they refusing to pay, and learning that the company was attempting to transfer their assets in this city, Mr. Williams had the same attached, and will push matters to the bitter end. It is getting to be rather too common for life insurance companies to dodge their liabilities, and it is probably well that a test case arises here and there, where the courts are called in to compel them to do justice.

To any person from the country visiting Knoxville, the talk about hard times must look absurd, if they step into that wonderful store of McNulty, George & Hall's and see their immense stock of goods and the people buying them, just because they sell them for less than other houses do. They sell Jeans, brown Homesies, Prints, Ticks, Shoes and Hats, for less than ever before. On Fine Dress Goods, they are the only store that can afford to sell as low as they do, because they buy them of importers and manufacturers direct.

Among the Mountains.

BY REV. H. C. ATWATER.

To the Editors of the Chronicle:

I have just returned from a fourteen days' trip, on horseback—crossing and recrossing, in various directions—the mountains of East Tennessee and North Carolina.

As I viewed them last summer, lifting their lightning-scared summits above the clouds, clothed with the softest green, I said, "human eyes had never seen ought more grand and beautiful." But now, at the magic touch of the Frost King, the magnificent forests, stretching away as far as the eye can reach, are clothed with gorgeous colors—such as no language can describe. The rich, red and brown, of the various kinds of oaks is everywhere; while the bright yellow of the poplar, gleams along the mountain sides, in the golden sunshine, like the banners of an army, marching on to certain victory; the firs, pines and balsams, near the mountain tops, and often down their sides, furnish that fringe, or border of green, which makes the picture complete. Surely, if I call the rainbows that have ever arched the heavens, since Noah's time—had fallen, and left their robes on these grand old mountains—the colors could not be more beautifully blended.

In every mile of ascent, and descent, in sunshine, and in the shade of every passing cloud, a new picture of beauty was presented.

If the dwellers in the cities and villages of East Tennessee, knew what beauty God lavished on their mountains, in the autumn time, they would leave their dwellings, and camp on the Roan or Bald, or some other magnificent outlook, where the soul might be filled with a beauty rare indeed, on this sin-cursed earth.

It was pleasant to witness every where among the people, tokens of material prosperity. New mills, and dwelling houses are being erected. Fat cattle abound, children thronged the highways to the public school at the foot of the Iron Mountain, in Mitchell county, North Carolina, under the vigilant superintendence of Capt. Jenkins, we found General Wilder's new iron forges, nearly ready for operation. He will make "greenbacks" plenty. In a cove, where hitherto they were hard to be obtained. They will bring out from the bowels of that mountain, wealth hidden there, by God himself, when He made the world.

Mr. D. Jobe, an enterprising woolen manufacturer, of Carter county, East Tennessee, is erecting a new woolen mill on Reem's Creek, twelve miles south of Asheville, and soon the mountains will echo to the time of his spindles, and click-clack of the flying shuttles. So rapid will be the process of manufacturing, that wool taken from the sheep's back one week, may be on the farmer's back the next. Intelligent industry utilizing our magnificent water-power, with rum and its twin curse, tobacco, banished, the magnificent mountain country will bloom into an Eden of beauty.
